More than 100 million people in the United States are at risk of contracting a disease that is caused by a parasite that is found in the soil. The parasite is called Strongyloides stercoralis and it is one of the most common causes of intestinal infection in the United States. The parasite is found in the soil and it can enter the body through the skin. It can also be transmitted from one person to another. The parasite can cause a variety of symptoms, including abdominal pain, diarrhea, and weight loss. In some cases, it can cause more serious complications, such as lung disease and neurological problems. The good news is that the disease is treatable with medication. However, it is important to seek medical attention if you suspect you have been infected.
